A Tropical Tribute

“We’re a stiff group,” laughed Family Hospice & Palliative Care prez Rafael Sciuolo as he was corralled for a photo op during A Tropical Tribute to 30 Years, held at the Phipps Conservatory on Thursday.

So, would a few cocktails be in order to loosen up the ties?

“Sure, and a get-out-of-jail free card from the Pittsburgh police,” mused Jon Allegretti.

We didn’t hear any sirens screaming toward Schenley Park, so the socials must have managed to stay on the straight and narrow, although one reveler couldn’t help but observe how everyone was eagerly flocking toward the standing watering hole.

“Bar’s getting busy now!” he mused, although given the jungle-esque climes both indoors and out, we can hardly blame them.

non (a volunteer for 25-plus years) were among those enjoying some wine and dine, not to mention Ivan, a full-time therapy dog whose hunger for hors d’oeuvre handouts had him more than willing to sit, stay for a while.
