

“The night before Joyce passed away, a good friend and doctor from UPMC told me that hospice was the closest thing to heaven, and the nurses were the closest thing to angels, that one would ever experience.

As Joyce laid in her bed that night, God came and took her home to Heaven. For this very reason, I chose to add Joyce’s name to the Celebration of Life Wall and to a Fountain Plaque, to honor her at her last resting place. This is where I stroked her arm and hand until she was taken to a better place.

I now go back to the wall and have coffee with her, knowing that she can hear and feel my presence. She didn’t pass away at the cemetery, she took her last breath in my arms at Family Hospice, Heaven’s Gate.”

—Jim Gracey
